Join us in Atlanta, as we come together once again for the world's premier RF and microwave industry conference and tradeshow: IMS2021. Now in its 64th year, IMS is the place to be each year for professionals buying and developing materials, devices, components, systems, design & simulation software, and test & measurement equipment for products operating from RF to THz.

9000 participants from over 50 countries include senior management, engineering management, engineers, and R&D personnel from academia, commercial industry, and government/military. Participating exhibitors can establish new US and international connections, present products directly to industry leaders, and see the state of the art in a showcase of the best developments for applications that enable us to connect for a smarter, safer world.
